

Repair and prepare: growth and the euro after Brexit

(<https://gulbenkian.pt/wp-content/uploads/2017/02/repair-and-prepare-growth.jpg>)

As it nears its 60th anniversary, the European Union is haunted by a succession of crises. Europe's economy has just gone through a lost decade. Growth and investment remain low, while debt and unemployment have settled at high levels in many parts of the eurozone. The EU is also politically weaker: One of its largest members is preparing to leave, and populism is on the rise in many countries.

The ad hoc stabilization measures of the past years will not suffice to protect the euro against further crises and bring the eurozone back on a sustainable growth path. A wait-and-see approach is both economically expensive and politically dangerous. If we want the common currency to deliver stability and economic growth, we need to prepare and reform the euro area now. To this end, a high-level working group has brought together in a Report the best reform ideas and translated them into a comprehensive reform strategy at this crucial juncture in Europe's history.
